Satchel: The Life and Times of an American Legend

By Tye, Larry.

Random House. 1 Paperback(s), 2009. soft. Book Condition: New. (Winner of the 2009 Casey Award for Best Baseball Book of the Year; named one of the Best Books of 2009 by the Chicago Tribune and Kansas City Star; and a New York Times Notable Book) Making the case that one of baseball's most talented and entertaining players was never given proper credit for breaking the color barrier in the Major Leagues, former Boston Globe journalist Larry Tye gives us the real story of athlete, showman, and quotable philosopher Leroy "Satchel" Paige. A superstar of the Negro Leagues who operated like a free agent decades before the rules allowed them, Paige never let the truth get in the way of a good story, and himself authored much of the legend that grew up around him. As Tye explains in detail, Paige was hurt and angry when Jackie Robinson beat him to the Major Leagues, but went on at the improbable age of 42 to help propel the Cleveland Indians to the World Series. "Age is a case of mind over matter," he said. "If you don't mind, it don't matter." First, make a list of, say, the five athletes of all time...
