Gliding down the steps, and turning round a rosebush into the secluded part of the garden where he stands, Diana runs to him unseen, holds out her two hands towards his, and puts her cheek up prettily for a kiss. The soldier looks at her an instant, crushing her tiny fingers in his palm, and then, with quickening light in his grey eyes, bends to her cheek, and kisses her with the words--My child! Years are blotted out, and they are friends again; he strong and fatherly, she sweet and grateful; as they were to each other in the first weeks at Niagara Falls, before that cruel war broke out, and parted them for these weary years. I am so glad to see you, Uncle John, and in my husbands house! Leonard will be as proud to give you welcome as myself. Youll stay with us some time Make it a long time, Uncle John. Well, by-and-by, my child, if you will have me; but not now. You see what public business means. I must return this evening with the Duke. This evening! Nay, we shall not let you go. Leonard must speak for me to his Grace. A minister is expected down to see me. It is business that will carry me away; but if you ask me, I shall soon come back. I long to see you in your life at home. Youve been a traveller since we parted. Taking a seat on...
