Of course it will be understood that, in the informal remarks I shall make, there is no allusion save to our own communities and to our own American Universities. I could not hope to adequately discuss these, and surely I should fail to appreciate the peculiarities of Universities abroad, determined, as they must be, by traditional influences, by governmental relations, or by local conditions hard for anyone to unstand who is not to the manor born. Indeed, it is already clear that in our own country the varying conditions and constituencies which surround our Universities involve some important differences in the development and activity of each, though there are enough broad features of resemblance to make it proper to consider them for our present purpose as a group. I am not sure but that it may still strike some as peculiar that we should speak of a group of American Universities, as if there were actually a number of them, while but a few years since it would have been difficult to show just cause why the title should be applied to a single...
