By Linda Gill McFarland

PublishAmerica. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 240 pages. Dimensions: 8.5in. x 5.5in. x 0.6in. Traci's mother died when she was only in grade school; she took her death very hard. She was raised by her father and step mother that she despised. One day while she was in school feeling down about her life's short comings, Kiki walks up and introduces herself. After that day, they became the best of friends. As they grew up as teenagers, they had a thing about meeting up at the mall every Saturday that became a part of their life. One Saturday as her and her girls were strolling through the mall, they ran into this group of guys, but one particular guy caught her eye. His name was Brian. Traci could see that Brian was the man and that he was running things. He introduces his boys and tells them that this one guy, Marcus, was his brother. After the introductions, Traci informed her girls that it was time to go because she had a hair appointment. As she went to walk away, Brian grabbed her by the arm. Why don't you take my card and give me a call. Traci looks at...
